All participants did equal amounts of work. We each spearheaded different methods, but ultimately did most of the work together, while coordinating through different time zones. Eliot focused on running a neural network as a classifier and obtaining MFCCs, while Mads and Sofus focused on optimizing tree-based models using extracted features from raw data files.

Eliot, Mads, Sofus